Introduction

The following information will help you decide which tickets are most suitable for you if you're using public transport in and around Nottingham.

What is the best ticket for me?

To decide which ticket offers the best value and the best options for travel you will need to ask yourself a few questions…

- Which bus operator will I be travelling with? Check out their ticket prices on-line or ask the driver.
- Will I need to connect from one bus to another bus or tram to complete my journey, will I be changing operator? A multi-operator ticket may be a better option.
- Which ticket should I ask for?
  Single ticket - one single trip
  Day ticket - all day unlimited travel
  Season ticket - if you travel more than 3 times a week, it may be better value to have a season ticket.

How far can I travel with a multi operator ticket?

A kangaroo day and season ticket allows unlimited travel within the kangaroo boundary. This boundary is shown in the map below and covers the Greater Nottingham area and includes the tram to Hucknall.

Where can I buy a multi-operator day ticket?

Ask the driver or conductor on any bus, tram or train for a kangaroo day ticket and they will issue you one straight away. Or, if you'd like to buy one in advance, just call into one of the Travel Centres at Broadmarsh or Market Square, you can even buy a pack of 10 and save money!
Kangaroo day tickets are also available from Beeston train station or on-train if boarding at Bulwell, Carlton and Netherfield.

Where can I buy a multi-operator season ticket?

Multi-operator season tickets can only be purchased from the Broadmarsh Travel Centre (in the Broadmarsh Bus Station). The season ticket is called a kangaroo and is printed for you while you wait.
